Debut album Blues Revisited - Selina and the Howlin Dogs
Lockdown ignites debut blues album, 20 years in the making

Due for release in March 2022

- "Musically very tight with super sharp vocals..." - Witney Music Festival
"Selina and the Howlin Dogs, they were great!" - Matt Allwright, BBC Radio
"...high energy interaction, great tunes and calls for more..." - Wokingham Festival
"A great band that clearly enjoy what they do..." - Choko Beer Festival
"...you were awesome and just what was needed..." - Rabbit Hole Music Events
"The Best Band Name" - BBC Introducing

The debut album Blues Revisited from Selina and the Howlin Dogs marries something old, something new with something blues. With a catalogue of songs going back to 2002, you could say that this debut album is long overdue. It represents the re-ignited love for blues, fused with influences from rock, funk and even some hip hop, giving it a contemporary feel whilst keeping it real and full of passion as you'd expect from the blues.

The lockdown delivered a natural time for reflection, and it made us look back on all our songs whilst also writing new material. The urge to play music with genuine grit and passion provided the realisation that the one genre consistently present in all our songs was the blues.
